Summer Spirit

The Rev. Canon Allisyn Thomas

A perfect summer day is when the sun is shining, the breeze is blowing, the birds are singing, and the lawn mower is broken.

~James Dent

There is a myth in church circles that things tend to slow down in summer: fewer activities, fewer meetings, even fewer people as parishioners disperse to parts far and wide for their seasonal vacations. Frankly, I have yet to work in a church where that is actually true, but at the same time, it does not mean things keep going as they do the rest of the year. Actually far from it, which is one of the reasons I love the quote above by author James Dent. The longer periods of daylight and heat of summer help us appreciate the beauty and abundance of God's gifts and the lawn mower can wait a bit while we enjoy what the season has to offer.

Every summer has its own unique stories and this one is no different. Father Mark, along with his family, is on a long-deserved Sabbatical. A time of rest, reflection, prayer, play, and rejuvenation. He and I were talking right before his Sabbatical began, and while he was clearly looking forward to it, he was also excited about coming back in August and engaging with all of us with renewed energy and excitement. In fact, he was already starting to plan. I think we all better rest up a bit . . .

However, the Sabbatical is not just about Father Mark being away, it is also about our sharing in the journey with the McKone-Sweets and having our own time of rest, reflection, prayer, play, and rejuvenation. The Sabbatical, funded through a generous grant from the Lily Foundation, will take them to Guatemala, Wales, and Ireland. It will also "take" us to those places as well.

On June 1 and 2, our services will focus on Guatemala and Latin American spirituality and the Rev. Carlos Garcia, Diocesan Hispanic Missioner, will be our preacher. The first of the Summer Soirées

will be on Wednesday, June 5 from 6:00 to 8:00 out on the patio, featuring food, beverages, and music from Guatemala. All the soirées will be family-friendly, so please feel free to invite friends and family.

On July 13 and 14, we will explore Welsh spirituality and the Rev. Dr. Richard Lee, priest-in-charge of St. Mark's in City Heights will be our preacher. The Second Summer Soirée will be Wednesday, July 10 and feature food, beverages, and music from Wales.

Finally, on August 3 and 4, we will look at Irish spirituality and are blessed to have the Very Rev. Penny Bridges, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral as our preacher. The last Sabbatical Soirée, August 7, will be a grand party with live Irish music, food, and beverages.

In addition to the Sabbatical offerings, we have many other things going on as well: Let Us Entertain You gatherings will be held in homes of parishioners and provide plenty of opportunities for fellowship, having fun, and learning new things. There will be summer books groups beginning in July, details coming soon.

However, in the midst of all these activities, we must note that the story of this summer involves an important transition. Our beloved Mother Mary Lynn Coulson will be leaving St. Bart's the end of June for the next step in her spiritual journey. We will have opportunities to thank her for the many gifts she has shared with us, most importantly herself, but I encourage all to share with her the ways she has touched you and your families. No doubt she, David, and George have many adventures yet ahead.

So clearly this is a summer from which many stories will be told. A time to come together with God and as people of God. A time to renew, a time to rest, a time to bask, a time to let go, a time to learn, and a time to simply be. A time to allow for and allow in God's surprises.

Sending off Mother Mary Lynn

Kristeen Evans

Saying goodbye is always difficult, especially when we are sending off a beloved priest. We've witnessed Mother Mary Lynn grow as a person and a priest while here at St. Bart's. She and David married and welcomed George into their family. Mother Mary Lynn became our preschool's Chaplain and continued her pastoral care work. As Mother Mary Lynn has said, "I love St. Bart's because I am a pastor to two-year-olds and 102-year-olds."

We will celebrate Mother Mary Lynn's ministry on Sunday, June 30 in the courtyard following the 10:15 a.m. service.

Moments like this force us to acknowledge that our lives are constantly changing; that God is always calling us out of our comfort zones; that even the best things don't stay the same. It has been a joy and an honor to be your priest. St. Bart's is a special place - a place where all are welcome, but more importantly where all those who are welcomed change the community through their own gifts, questions, and faith. Keep growing, keep learning, keep being leaders in the Jesus Movement. God has amazing things in store for St. Bart's, for me, for the church.

~Mother Mary Lynn

Summer Children's Chapel

The Rev. Mary Lynn Coulson

"For the saints of God are just folk like me, and I mean to be one too."

Shepherds, artists, authors, doctors – the saints of God, past, and present can inspire us in our lives. This summer we will learn about a new saint each week – sometimes from long ago, some you've never heard of before, some familiar. Come hear the story of their life – how they were just a regular person like you and me, and did incredible things for God. We will add a new saint to our collection each week and by the end of the summer, decide how we will be saints for God's kingdom, too. Craft projects, skits, and outdoor games will keep us engaged and having fun together!

During the summer, children in grades Pre K through 5th grade are invited to join Children's Chapel. Children sit with their family in church at the beginning of the 10:15 a.m. service and are called out to Children's Chapel. Children return to church with their families before communion.

There is no sign up for Children's Chapel, just come forward when called. All are welcome!

Faith and Science: Are They Compatible? Part I

The Rev. William Zettinger

Having spent most of my life in Science and Engineering before my ordination, twelve years ago and also being a third generation Episcopalian, I am often asked the question “Are faith and science compatible?” And, how do I reconcile the two points of view? I am going to attempt to answer that question in a two-part article this month and next.

Prominent clashes — both historical and contemporary — have led to the widely held conclusion that science and religion are fundamentally incompatible. Yet, many scientists practice a traditional faith, having found a way to accommodate both scientific inquiry and religious teaching in their belief system.

Other scientists are bringing science to bear on the phenomenon of religion and spiritual belief — neuroscientists are studying what happens in the brain during religious experiences, Astrophysicists are asking how did the Big Bang start creation while anthropologists are investigating how religion is linked to cooperation in the community. There is also that crazy world of Quantum physics where Physicists believe that just by observing a particle it is affected in some way and this matter of Quantum Phase Entanglement may explain why prayer works.

One of the greatest trials in the history of the United States took place in the summer of 1925 in Dayton, Tennessee. In that small southern city, a high school teacher by the name of John Scopes was charged with teaching his students evolution, which violated a recently passed Tennessee law.

The dramatic courtroom battle pitted two of the greatest figures on the American scene. Prosecuting the case for the state of Tennessee was William Jennings Bryan, a three-time Democratic candidate for President, a one-time Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson, and a devout Presbyterian who believed the Bible literally, including the two accounts of creation in the Book of Genesis. In other words that the Bible was inherent - without error.

On the other side was the renowned Chicago criminal defense lawyer Clarence Darrow, an avowed agnostic and a founder of the American Civil Liberties Union. He represented the defense. At the end of the trial, Scopes was convicted and ordered to pay a small fine, which was later overturned on appeal.

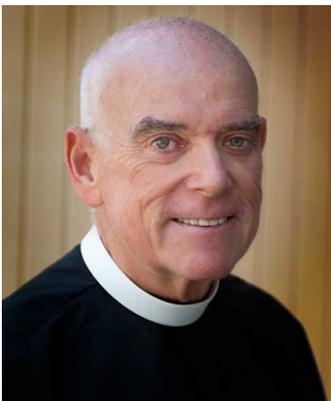

The Scopes trial, which was dramatized in the Broadway play and subsequent movie Inherit the Wind proved to be a disaster for the fundamentalists – they were mocked and ridiculed in the national media. A beleaguered William Jennings Bryan died of a fatal stroke only one week after the trial.

Fundamentalists withdrew from the national limelight – they created their own Bible colleges, their own schools, their own universities until the late 1970s when they re-emerged in national politics as a force to be reckoned with. “Creation science” became the fundamentalist alternative to evolution.

In 2000, the Kansas State Board of Education voted to remove evolution from the state science standards for public school students – the decision has since been rescinded.

Even in our progressive California, evangelical stealth candidates running for school boards have opposed the teaching of evolution, or at least want the curriculum to include “creation science” as an alternative.

At the heart of the fundamentalist rejection of evolution is the fear that evolution rules out belief in a Creator and nullifies the Bible. But is this so? Admittedly, the mutual suspicion with which theology and science regard each other goes all the way back to the sixteenth century to a Polish astronomer named Nicholas Copernicus who was a deacon, by the way, who was the first to suggest that the sun, rather than the earth, was at the center of the universe. Less than one hundred years later, the Italian scientist, Galileo, supported the view of Copernicus.

This public endorsement earned him the wrath of the Roman Catholic Church because a sun-centered universe contradicted several references in the Bible to the earth being stationary. For you Bible scholars here they are.

1 Chronicles 16:30: "He has fixed the earth firm, immovable."

Psalms 93:1: "Thou hast fixed the earth immovable and firm ..."

Psalms 96:10: "He has fixed the earth firm, immovable ..."

Psalms 104:5: "Thou didst fix the earth on its foundation so that it never can be shaken."

Isaiah 45:18: "...who made the earth and fashioned it, and himself fixed it fast..."

Outreach Update

Sending Ripples of Love Locally and Globally

How many of the multitude of ways that St. Bartholomew's Outreach Program shows our love to all of our neighbors do you know about?

We share our love and resources with local Episcopalian friends and neighbors with our ongoing support of St. Luke's in North Park, St. Mark's in City Heights and Camp Stevens in Julian. Further afield we show our Haitian Episcopalian neighbors our love by providing financial support for Epiphany School in Lorainette. We provide meals for the children, school supplies, teacher salaries and have built a school, which can be used by the whole community as a shelter during hurricanes.

Each year we send some of our youth members on to the next stages of their lives with our love as we provide a number of scholarships to help them with college.

Locally we support our neighbors of all faiths in a number of ways. Our long-standing relationship with Interfaith Community Services provides much-needed support for some of the most needy members of our community. We support North County LGBTQ, local senior centers and Refugee Net. Our new Feeding San Diego program has been a resounding success, providing a weekly source of food for many in our community.

We support members of our community throughout the year with various programs such as our Thanksgiving Baskets, which provide families in transitional housing with a traditional Thanksgiving meal with all the trimmings. Our annual Angel Tree is always a great success each Christmas as we share the joy of Jesus' birth with children who need our love.

We send our love and support each month to a sponsored child in Vida Joven de Mexico, an orphanage in Tijuana for abandoned and abused children.

Here at St. Bartholomew's our Outreach Programs are hard at work each month spreading the Good News and our love.

The Rev. William Zettinger

Although Galileo considered himself a loyal Catholic, the Church did not, and the Inquisition found him guilty of heresy and confined him to house arrest. Interestingly, it took the Roman Catholic Church more than 350 years to admit its error and restore Galileo's reputation as one of the pioneers of modern science.

That kind of suspicion between faith and science is still present today, not just with fundamentalists but with some mainline Protestants. It is said one in five mainline Protestants take the Bible literally.

In truth, we all wonder how to reconcile what we have learned from astronomy, geology biology and physics with what we have learned in the Bible and church. Walker Percy, the Southern novelist, describes the dilemma many of us have faced:

“You're a high school student and attend biology class where you are taught modern evolutionary theory. On Sunday, you go to church where you hear the story of creation from a fundamentalist preacher. Then you go to college and take a class from a liberal professor on Science and World Religions.

You speak to the professor about the dispute between the preacher and the biology teacher. The professor smiles and says simply, “Both are right.”

But are they? How do we reconcile faith and science? Or as I like to put it – How can you live with one leg in the Bible and the other leg in the modern scientific world?

That will be the question I will try to answer in next month's Part II of this article.
